.08 Frequently Asked Questions.

A. What is the CFedS Program?

The CFedS program is a certification program designed to provide State licensed land surveyor with training necessary to provide cadastral services in Indian Country, to basic federal standards.

B. Who will be managing the CFedS program?

A panel established by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and composed of members selected from BLM, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), the Office of the Special Trustee for American, Tribal or Alaskan Native representatives and the private sector will oversee the program.

C. What is the purpose of the CFedS program?

The CFedS program has been authorized by the Secretary of the Interior to enhance the delivery of cadastral services in Indian country.

D. Who is eligible for the CFedS program?

Applicants must be a State licensed land surveyor in good standing.

E. How does a surveyor become certified?

Surveyors must complete a training module equivalent to a three-credit college course (approximately 120 hrs.) and pass the Certification Examination.

F. How can I find the name of a CFedS in my area?

Upon completion of the program, the surveyor's name will be placed on the CFedS Roster. Individuals, Tribes and the BIA will be encouraged to select surveyors from the CFedS Roster when contracting for cadastral services in Indian Country.

G. Does a surveyor have to be certified to provide cadastral services in Indian country?

The program is voluntary, but certain services must be performed by a CFedS to be accepted by the BLM.

H. Where will the training be held?

The course will be delivered by various forms of distance learning.
